Parks and Recreation Facilities Master Plan Update web survey available

As part of the Parks and Recreation Facilities Master Plan Update, the Parks and Community Services Department is asking citizens to share their opinions by participating in a web survey. The Master Plan provides the guiding framework for determining what the parks and recreation facilities should look like in the future. The survey is one of many opportunities for citizens to share their opinions and ideas with the city. The survey covers many areas including parks, greenbelts and facility usage and needs and opinions on recreational programs.

The success of future parks and recreation programming and facilities relies heavily on the city planning for what the community needs and wants. Your opinions are important.

The survey takes about 6-8 minutes and can be found at:

The survey will be available until February 1, 2008 at 5 PM.
